To facilitate the production of periodic statistical publications, RealSoft developed the Statistical Data Publishing Platform E-DataPub, which helps National Statistics Offices with gathering, examining, and processing data and automatically generating periodic publications. What sets E-DataPub platform apart from other platforms in the market, is its ability to handle many data sources while maintaining a robust workflow that ensures data governance. The platform also assures compatibility with the statistical calendar to prevent any delays in statistical publication.

FalconMap is a powerful digital field management mapping application for fast geologic surveys and GIS data collection. It is an open-source product that works on iOS and Android and can be integrated with GIS servers like ArcGIS and QGIS. FalconMap's web platform makes it easy to assign geofeature layers to your team members and control all settings from one central location.
